

Caring for a Patient in a Cast

One of our most popular courses, Caring for a Patient in a Cast will provide education in trauma care, suitable for ward based and outpatient staff, regardless of qualification. The day will provide solutions for problems occurring in injuries to the upper and lower limbs, complications arising from casting, relevant anatomy and physiology and a Q&A Troubleshooting Session with a panel of experts. The course will set and evaluate learning outcomes, promoting the development of skills, knowledge and personal progression. This course is suitable for those new to an Orthopaedic & Trauma environment.

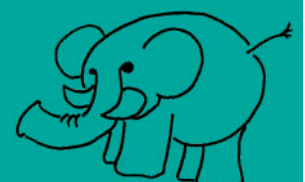

TEACH delivers low cost, high quality education to Health Care Professionals within the specialisms of Orthopaedics, Trauma, Casting and Nurse-Led Services. TEACH offers an ever expanding range of relevant practice based Study Days and Courses all year round, allowing delegates the flexibility and opportunity to meet their learning needs in the way most suited to them.

TEACH also has the capacity to offer bespoke courses and training as well as a Consultancy Facility.

The TEACH Directors all have a commitment to education and the development of the individual. They, along with members of the TEACH Faculty, represent professional bodies such as the Royal Colleges at a national level and they have close connections to several universities. In addition they constantly maintain contact and share ideas with colleagues world wide preserving and increasing their knowledge base.

The extensive TEACH Faculty complement the Directors with a wealth of experience within specialist Clinical Practice, Educational Delivery and International Lecturing, ensuring TEACH can offer holistic solutions to all aspects of Health Care learning needs.
